Physical features

Measurements: h: 0.457 * w: 0.28 * t: 0.11

State of conservation: The back and part of the left edge are preserved.

Legibility: The preserved inscribed surface is, all in all, well legible, although various letters are obliterated by several irregular holes.

Reuse: Possibly reused as a building stone (see Findspot).

Signs of reuse: The stele is broken on all sides, and the surface is damaged by several irregular holes; no explicit sign of reuse is nonetheless extant.

Findspot

Acropolis --> Erechtheion (northeast of) --> medieval/modern building

Formerly known as: Tholos

Details:

Found in the dismantling of the s.c. 'tholos', formerly located northeast of the Erechtheion, see WilhelmSBakBerlin 1887, 1069 no. 8

Date of discovery: 1887

Circumstances: archeological excavation

First edition:

IG 2 5 Suppl., 407e

Original location

Acropolis

Details:

Rather likely, this stele may have been originally set up in proximity of IG 2[3] 1 1141, whose general contents and historical circumstances were essentially the same.

Internal references to Athenian places and monuments:

Acropolis.
